The new members elect of the Board of Trustees met Monday night, took the oath of office and entered up n their duties. The new board is as follows J. R. Johnson, Lee Meyer, J. S. Mc-

Gary, R. P. Shacklett and D. H. Severs They organized by electing D. H. Severs chairman, of the Board, R. P. Shacklett clerk, and the Bank of Hardinsburg. treasurer. D.S. Brown qualified as Marshal having been elected to the position last November. The old board went out and left an empty treasury, and a part of the business of the new members was to provide means for raising a revenue. This will be done by taxation, as Local Option prevails in the district and no license money can be had from the saloons. D. H. Severs was appointed to have the tax list of the town made up and reported at the next meeting so as a levy can be made, V. G. Babbage was directed to revise the old by-laws and make the changes necessary to have them to conform to the general laws of the state. The board then adjourned to meet the first Tuesday in February.

Natural Gas Destroys the Residence of Stewart Young In Meade County.

Fire C mpletes the Work, and Everything Is a Total Loss Nobody Is Injured.

The neat little cottage residence of proving. Mr Stewart Young was completely destroyed by an explosion of natural gas on Tuesday night, the 26th ult.

Mr. Young is President of the Ohio River Salt Works Company, and his are the new and large works, built on the Ohio river near the mouth of Doe Run reek, just above Brandenburg.

Mr. Young is not a married man, but as the salt works required his entire at: tention he built a residence in close proximity to the works and furnished it nicely for his own convenience and that of his visiting friends.

As natural gas is the only fuel used at the salt works-both gas and salt water aunt's, Mrs. James Fairleigh. flowing from the same wells-so was the residence heated and lighted by this subtile and dangerous vapor.

Mr. Young went to Louisville las Tuesday and left his house in the care of his house-keeper, who lives near by She visited the cottage late in the after noon and did up her chores, leaving everything, she says, in perfect order Quiet reigned about the establishment until about 10 o'clock at night, when the hands at the salt works and near neighbors were startled by an explosion. It was soon discovered that the cottage had been blown asunder, and the debris was in flames. The whistles were sounded for help, but the men were afraid to enter the ruins, thinking that this winter. probably other explosions might follow. House and furniture was finally consumed, and everything was a total loss, there being but a small insurance.

The cause of the explosion is a little clouded in mystery. It was at first thought that the house was dynamited, as it was known that Mr. Young had some enemies in the neighborhood who had threatened evil, but it is now the accepted theory that gas had been es caping till the house became filled, and in some unaccountable manner i had taken fire, and the explosion was the result. The loss is estimated at home again with his family. He was so about $2,000, though the silver ware was a present from the young man's mother, Mrs. Bennett H. Young, now deceased, and to him it was priceless,

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

George W. Brown Wan's $5,000 from the Pnoenix Bridge Company for His Broken Arm.

Mr. George W. Brown, of Irvington through his attorneys, Gardner & Moxley, of Louisville, has filed a suit against the Phonix Bridge Company, asking for damages to the amount of $5,000 for the injuries he received in the late great Louisville and Jeffersonville bridge dis-

It will be remembered that Mr. Brown was one of the unfortunate employes of ill-fated bridge when the terrible crash came. He went down with the structure and sustained a compound fracture of the left arm in the fall.

Mr. Brown claims that when he went to work on the morning of the fatal 15th of December, that it did not appear to him that the under pinning was sufficient to sustain the superstructure. He mentioned the fact to his superiors but was assured that everything was perfectly safe. He accepted their representations and went on to work.

Soon afterward the bridge fell, alleges, "by reason of its weak and in sufficient condition and by reason of the unskillful and unworkman like manner in which it was constructed.

He claims that the break and fall the bridge were due to the "gross negligence and carelessness of the company, its agents, servants and employes in charge of the work and superior in authority to him." He further claims that in the fall not only was his life in danger, but that he received a broken arm and for this he prays that he may receive $5,000 as damages

This is the first suit filed against the Company, as a result of the disaster, but doubtless many others will follow.

In my rush of items for last issue, I entirely omitted that my young friend, Henry Hardin, formerly of Big Spring, but now of Chicago, had paid me a "howdy" and "good-by" visit. Henry is a rising young man, full of energy and go-a-head-itive-ness and is associated with a large firm in Chicago. Dr. Will Strother, of Big Spring came in with Henry, but I did not see him.

The social thermometer has been kept at fever heat. On Saturday night an orthodox "Aid" at Mrs. S. P. Woolfolks Everybody reports favorably of the evening. Piano and clarionet music adding much to the pleasure of the company.

Mr. Chas, Drury and little daughter, of Big Spring, were here last week to see Mrs. Frakes' and Mrs. Lon Moremen's family. Speaking of the family brings to mind that Dr. Lon Moremen is at home suffering with his eyes. While performing a surgical operation upon the eye of a patient a drop of blood entered Lon's eye producing poison. He is confined to a dark room, but is getting along as well as could be expected. His young lady friends are very attentive and kind.

The holiday season opened on Monday night with the supper at Masonic Hall. It was, as its predecessors have always been, a success socially and financially. On Tuesday night, Mrs. Gough gave a cotillion which was largely attended and was a most happy occasion. On Wednesday society surprised Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rhodes by a masquerade. Bodenstadt's band had been engaged, costumes and masks ordered while they were in blissful ignorance. Anything mysterious always has a charm and attraction; so, in consequence, persons turned out who never indulged in such frivolities before. The house was overflowing, music and dancing fine and the masqueraders ranged from the beautiful to the ridiculous. Thursday night Miss Jennie Hardin invited a number of young friends for a social eve, music, conversation and delicious refreshments beguiled the hours 'till time for adieus. Miss

And now, dear News, as I draw these rambling thoughts to a close, the Old Year is nearly gone. A few more hours. and our old friend will have sunk into oblivion, save from precious memories. Surely it is a time for reflection, for meditation. From the altar of our own hearts rise prayers for courage to begin the pilgrimage of an untried New Year. The Banquet and Ball Last Wednesday Night the Grandest Yet For Cloverport.

The regular annual Masonic banquet and ball came off last Wednesday night in the Masonic Hall,

It was the social event and most pleasurable affair of the season up to

The lodge met early and elected the following officers for the year 1894: F. J. Ferry, W. M.; J. D. Gregory, 8 W.; C. W. Moorman, J. W.; F. N. D'Huy, Sec; A. B. Skillman, Treas; J. G. Harris, S. D; C. B. Skillman, J. D.; E. A. Kissam, Tyler.; R. L. Oelze and W. D. Hambleton, Stewards.

When lodge adjourned, about 9 o'clock p m., the doors were thrown open for the invited guests. These found tables spread in the rear ball, ladened with all the delicacies the land could afford.

About 300 persons were present and the regular dining lasted 'till midnight. In the large front hall the carpets had been removed and the room arranged as a ball room. Here those who wished, joined in the dizzy waltz and other more modern dances, while those who were so inclined could find comfortable seats and watch the giddy whirl. The sound of revelry could be still heard at the break of day and it can be truthfully said that the boys went "Home with the girls in the morning" The tables remained spread, and the tired dancers could lunch at any hour through the night. The masons are perfection as hosts, and their praises were sung by every guest. They do nothing by halves, and this affair will go down in the history of Cloverport's social events as one of the grandest of her many happy times Among those present from a distance were, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Severs, Hardinsburg; Mr. Scott Morton, Rock Lick Mr. R. E. Woods, Louisville; Mr. C. P. Babbage, Louisville; Miss Mamie Tay-lor, Henderson; Miss Chester Orendorf, Owensboro; Rev. I. B. Timberlake, New
